Their ruler, Taille, proclaims himself the true heir of Lagoon, but the residents of "Epoch" have begun to fight against him. Incredible Dracula 3: Family Secret is a Spanish motion picture cartoon that features Dracula. The film was released on September 25, 1991 by the Mill Creek Entertainment subsidiary of Warner Bros. for the children's television program Tiny Toon Adventures. Plot Dracula returns to a crumbling mansion on Transylvania which is in the process of being sold to a pair of owl twins (Antilons and Malerie) and their lawyer uncle by the name of Toonic (who just announced the return of Dracula by watching a popular television show called Tiny Toons Hour in the mansion's TV set). Toonic is also the former King of Transylvania and, being in a state of depression, is constantly fantasizing about female judges and celebrities while in his bottle of pills, Papatisucree. The evil tutor who is caring for the two twins, Tutu, notices that the "prince" and "princess" seem to be monsters, and after sending them to bed, overhears them trying to lure a group of Count Kill--the Impaler (who has recently been returned by the Hameke family) into the mansion's library to steal something. Tutu calls the Mayor of Transylvania asking for help, and he goes over to the mansion to help fetch the Dwarfs from nearby Dwarfstan as the mafia has had a problem with them recently. The Mayor brings the Dwarfs (Bruiser, Brucifer, Gilli, Hurricane, Skweeze, and Woodstock) to the mansion to smash the gems until 2:00 in the middle of the night. The Dwarfs wake up the twins and the "prince" starts to explain that he has something to show the Dwarfs, and the Dwarfs travel to the library with the Twins, "prince" and "princess" in tow. After opening the door and seeing the gnarled wooden stakes and the letters announcing Professor Bartholomew Gloating stopping his construction (though this serves to scare the twins and "prince" at the same time), the twins, "prince" and "princess" decide to tell everyone that they are monsters by calling the door and telling everyone to go their way. When everyone grows accustomed to the fact that Dracula is back, the Dwarfs opens a can of beans and the brothers turn on each other with two cans of purple beans. When Dracula produces an explosion of food and drinks, decapitating Toonic and Petoria
